DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of Species I (as depicted in Figs. 2-5) in the reply filed on 02/27/06 is acknowledged.

Applicant, in the reply, indicates that claims 1-13 are readable on the elected species. Nevertheless, upon further consideration, it is believed that claims 1-9, 12 and 13 are readable on the elected Species I. Claims 10 and 11 are not readable on the elected species. According, claims 10 and 11 are withdrawn from further consideration as being drawn to the non-elected invention.

Specification

2. The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: an essentially horizontally extending deflectable extension arm as recited in claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

4. Claims 1-9, 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for the use of two extension arms (56 and 57), does not reasonably provide enablement for use of an extension arm (56 or 57) for attaching the toilet cover to the rear portion of the toilet base. As understood from the instant specification, applicant discloses an assembly for mounting a (toilet) cover to a toilet base, i.e. the toilet bowl's rear portion. The assembly includes two extension arms (56 and 57) which are used for attaching the cover to the toilet base. Applicant, in the instant disclosure, does not disclose or shown that the cover could be attached to the toilet base by using the assembly having just one extension arm as claimed in the claims. Such lack of support in the instant disclosure does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make/use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

5. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

6. Claims 1-9, 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 1, the phrase "can be" renders the claim indefinite because it is unclear whether the limitations following the phrase are part of the claimed invention. Claims 2-9, 12 and 13 depend on claim 1 and are likewise indefinite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

7. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

8. Claims 1-4, 7, 12 and 13 as presently understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bly (5341571).

Regarding claims 1 and 13, the Bly reference discloses an assembly for mounting a cover (32) to a toilet base (Fig. 4). The assembly includes a fastener (at 22) extendable through a rear portion of the toilet base (constitute by the frame portion as schematically shown in Figures 1 and 2), a base member (at 48 in Figure 6) adapted to support the cover (32) in pivotal fashion. The base member includes two essentially horizontally extending deflectable extension arms (elements 76 & 78 constitute each arm) each defining in part an opening (84) for receiving the fastener. As schematically shown in Figure 6, the base member is slidably connected to and disconnected from the fastener by deflection on the extension arms so that the base member is capable of being removably attached to the toilet base.

Regarding claim 2, each of the arms has an inwardly facing catch surface.

Regarding claim 3, the base member (48) has two such extension arms (each of elements 74 as schematically shown in Figure 6) are arranged spaced apart on each side of the opening (84).

Regarding claims 4 and 7, the assembly also includes a cover (constitute by the arcuate element that bridges elements 74 as shown in Fig. 6) capable of restricting outward deflection of the arm when in a closed or engaged position. Also, the cover is positively engages the arms (Fig. 6).

Regarding claim 12, the cover (32) is a toilet cover.

Art Unit: 3751

9. Claims 1, 2, 4, 7, 8, 12 and 13 as presently understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bly (5341517).

Regarding claims 1 and 13, the Bly reference discloses an assembly for mounting a cover (30') to a toilet base (Fig. 4). The assembly includes a fastener (at 22') extendable through a rear portion of the toilet base (constituted by the frame portion as schematically shown in Figures 1 and 2), a base member (at 44' in Figure 7A) adapted to support the cover (30') in pivotal fashion. The base member includes two essentially horizontally extending deflectable extension arms (elements 60' & 62' constitute each arm) each defining in part an opening (68') for receiving the fastener. As schematically shown in Figure 7A, the base member is slidably connected to and disconnected from the fastener by deflection on the extension arms so that the base member is capable of being removably attached to the toilet base.

Regarding claim 2, each of the arms has an inwardly facing catch surface.

Regarding claims 4 and 7, the assembly also includes a cover (90) capable of restricting outward deflection of the arm when in a closed or engaged position. Also, the cover positively engages the arms (Fig. 7A).

Regarding claim 8, the assembly also includes a ring mount (90) disposed about the fastener engageable with the extension arm (Fig. 7A).

Regarding claim 12, the cover (30) is a toilet seat.

10. Claims 1-9, 12 and 13, as presently understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Moser (6381762).

Regarding claims 1 and 13, the Moser reference discloses an assembly for mounting a cover (32) to a toilet base. The assembly includes a fastener (at 12a or 12b) extendable through a rear portion of the toilet base (16), a base member (at 20 in Figures 2 and 3) adapted to support the cover (32) in pivotal fashion. The base member includes two essentially horizontally extending deflectable extension arms (about 22 and 24 in Fig. 2) each defining in part an opening (about 25 or 23 in Fig. 3) for receiving the fastener. As schematically shown in Figure 2, the base member is slidably connected to and disconnected from the fastener by deflection on the extension arms so that the base member is capable of being removably attached to the toilet base.

Regarding claim 2, each of the arms has an inwardly facing catch surface.

Regarding claim 3, the base member (at 20) has two such extension arms (each of elements 66b or 66a as schematically shown in Figure 3) are arranged spaced apart on each side of the opening (25 or 23 in Fig. 3).

Regarding claims 4 and 7, the assembly also includes a cover (constitute outer portions labeled as 48,72 in Fig. 3) capable of restricting outward deflection of the arm when in a closed or engaged position. Also, the cover is positively engages the arms (Fig. 6).

Regarding claims 5 and 6, cover (about 48) is hinged or linked to the base member via a living hinged (about 82 in Fig. 1).

Regarding claim 8, a ring mount (42a or 42b) disposed about the fastener engageable with the extension arm.

Regarding claim 9, the fastener includes a bolt (Fig. 5) extendable through the opening in the base member and a hole in the rear extension (Fig. 4) of the toilet base, wherein the assembly further includes a nut (38a or 38b).

Regarding claim 12, the cover (32) is a toilet cover.
